A Message of Peace through Reconciliation

The challenge confronting the United Nations (UN) is how to focus its international vision and iconoclastic perception in the pursuit of a peaceful global order.

By proclaiming 2009 as International Reconciliation Year, the UN shows the core upon which the Eight (8) Millennium Development Goals (MDGs) will be pursued: by magnanimous enlightened diplomatic leadership and statesmanship.

“The Millennium Challenge is Human Reconciliation: Unity in diversity,” as the path in attaining enduring peace and security, fraternal and cultural togetherness, economic and political sanity, and as rallying ideology to move the human community into higher quality of life under the regime of justice, liberty and fraternity.

Reconciliation Philosophy as spring-well of inspiring ideas upon which social and cultural dialogues, political and economic issues, educational and religious values will be distilled in the realm of high-mindedness; wherein strategic and operational sustainable peace and development will be fulfilled. Indeed, as a philosophical synthesis to bring opposite ideas into harmonious working reality. After all, the well-being of the Human Global Community is indivisible.

As it is, the UN MDGs is a monumental program of the century. To gain added strength and relevance in the implementation process, the emphasis should be its reconciliatory and complementary character. This connecting quality should likewise be the mobilizing call on all concern: Governments, Non-Governmental Organizations (NGOs), Civil Organized Societies, Religious Institutions, Schools and Universities, Media Organizations, Families and Homes; particularly, Individuals. Since, Reconciliation begins in every single persons and families acting together as cohesive working units: to act as reconciliatory instruments for a better world.

For these reasons, among others, the Foundations for Subjective Experience and Research, S.E.R., an NGO with Special Consultative Status by the UN Economic and Social Council (ECOSOC) vigorously espouses collective Action Plan to help make “2009 International Reconciliation Year” a success - to bolster “Sustainable World Peace Through Reconciliation.” (Link:www.global-balance.org)
